Trench Town, Kingston — Saturday, August 16, 2025 – Over 250 patrons, including families and children, gathered on the grounds of Trench Town Polytechnic College (TTPC) for a vibrant and impactful back-to-school community event, proudly endorsed by the Member of Parliament, the Most Honourable Mark Golding.

The event, which featured lively musical performances, fun-filled activities, and delicious food, brought together the community in a powerful display of unity and support for students preparing for the new school term. MP Golding commended the initiative, recognizing its significance in uplifting the youth of Trench Town and reinforcing community values.

With strong support from an impressive lineup of sponsors, the event successfully mobilized resources and goodwill to benefit the Trench Town community. Attendees received various forms of support and engagement from organizations such as the National Health Fund (NHF), Nicies, Medical Technologies, Poly Foods, Black Wall Consultants, Carimed, Tax Administration Jamaica (TAJ), HEART NSTA Trust (CTI), and the Registrar General's Department (RGD), among others.

A highlight of the day was the announcement of the Marcus Garvey Scholarship, established at TTPC by Jamaican-American businessman Mr. Carlos Daley. A passionate advocate of Garvey's principles, Mr. Daley—having overcome personal adversity through Garveyite teachings—has committed to funding the tuition of TTPC students who exemplify academic excellence, self-reliance, and dedication to social change. His philanthropic vision ensures that future leaders from the community can access inclusive, industry-relevant education without financial barriers.

"We are proud to have the support of Mr. Daley, whose scholarship initiative echoes the mission of TTPC and Garvey's legacy of empowerment through education," said Dr. Dosseth Edwards Watson, Principal of TTPC. She, along with Vice Principal Sandra Brown, was present and actively engaged throughout the event.

The event was expertly coordinated by Mr. Nyron Creary, with critical support from TTPC staff, most notably Nurse Allicia Hylton, who spearheaded the planning and execution of all activities.

With this year's success, TTPC and community leaders have committed to making this event an annual affair, aimed at providing much-needed support to families during the back-to-school period and fostering a spirit of unity, resilience, and hope in Trench Town
